The Steamer La Mascotte Burst Her Boiler on the Mississippi River. A GREAT LOSS OF LIFE.

ST. Louis, Mo., Oct. 6.—Shortly after noon vesterday the s eamer La Mascotte, bound from Grand Tower. Ill., to Cape Girardeau, Mo., exploded her boilers opposite Neeley's Landing, and was burned to the water's edge. The wreck floated nearly a mile below Willard's Landing, where it lodged on the shore. The reports of the accident are very meager and a full list of the killed and wounded cannot be obtained. The towboat Eagle was within sight when the explosion took place, and rendered valuable assistance, rescuing all who were left alive. The Eagle took thirty-five persons to Cape Girardeau. No list of passengers could be obtained, as the register is lost, and her surviving officers were too excited to tell who was on board. The following persons, all from Cape Girardeau, are known to be lost: Judge Hager and wife, Miss Kriegher, daughter of Christ Kriegher, Mrs.

Two chambermaids and an unknown lady and two children are also known to be lost. The bodies of the last three and one chambermaid were recovered and taken to Cape Girardeau on the Eagle. J. R. Perkins, first clerk, Miss Julia Rabich, of Cape Girardeau, and firs, engineer Porter are supposed to be lost. Out of the crew of twentyfour, fourteen are saved, and the total loss of life is placed between eighteen and twenty-two. Those known to be badly injured are Lena Bachman, daughter of George Bachman, of Cape Grardeau, and Lon Adams, the first mate. Among the saved are Capt. J. B. Thompson, Henry Leonery, steward, James V. Donohoe, phot, J. J. Harlan, second clerk, and D. C. Mantz, second engineer. CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—The following crop summary has been compiled by the Farmers Review: The crop returns for the week, in a general way, show that corn is well matured throughout the entire western belt, and sufficiently so to withstand the heavy frosts of the last three days of the week. In Missouri and Kentucky corn is ready for husking and cribbing. In Iowa and Illinois husking will begin about Oct. The reports showing the average yield vary but slightly from the former estimates, which are considerably under those of the preceding five years. In fifteen Illinois counties four report 20 bushels to the acre, five report 25 bushels, three 30 bushels, two 40 bushels, and one 60 bushels. In seventeen counties of Iowa one reports 10 bushels, three 15 bushess, two 20 bushels, three 25 bushels, one 30 bushels, four 35 bushels, one 40 bushels, and two 45 bushels. The averages continue good for Ohio, Indiana, and Michigan, and low in Wisconsin, Missouri, and

Kansas. Plowing for the fall sowing of wheat is progressing, and in many parts of Illinois, Missouri, Kansas, and Kentucky is completed and some seeding has been done. The wheat movement in Dakota is now light, a great deal of wheat having been marketed. The ruling prices are 50 to 55 cents per The movement is slow in Minnesota at 55 to 63 cents. In Illinois very little wheat is being sold, with prices at 60 to 75 cents. In Iowa the wheat movement is fair at 50 to 60 cents. In Ohio considerable wheat is being marketed at 65 to 78 cents. Missouri the wheat movement has fallen off, with ruling prices at 50 to 72 cents. In Kansas there is scarcely any wheat moving, with prices at 50 to 70 cents. In M chigan wheat is freely marketed at 69 to 73 cents. In Wisconsin there is a fair movement at 65 to 75 cents. The tenor of the reports shows that hogs generally are healthy, with a somewhat lighter run than usual, while cattle are looking better with improved pasture. PLEURO-PNEUMONIA.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Oct. 4.-The State Board of Health has finally listened to the importunities of the State vetermarian, Paul Paquin, and quarantined for nine y days against the slupment of cattle from the following localities: Lake, Cook, Du Page, Kane, Kendall, Will, Kankakee, and Iroquois counties, of Illinois; Newton, Jasper, Lake, Porter, and La Porte counties, of Indiana; the entire State of Oh o and Province of Quebec. Canada. The attorney general and other State officers think that the law is not adequate for such a step.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Oct. 4.—Gov. Hubbard has issued a proclamation establishing a quarantine against Illinois cattle during the epidemic in that State.

BISMARCK, Dakota, Oct. 4.—Gov. Pierce has issued a proclamation forbidding the importation into the Territory of cattle from Chicago not accompanied by a certificate of health from the office of the Illinois State veterinarian or the United States inspector.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 4.—In consequence of the our-break of pleuro-pneumona in the large stock-vards at Chtcago the State Board of Health has issued a proclamation declaring quarantine against the importation of cattle from that State.

Up to Oct. 1 there had been shipped, in rôund numbers, 2.700.000 gross tons of iron-ore from the harbors of Michigan, Wisconsin, and Minnesota. Of this amount 700,000 tons were from Marquette, 1,150.000 tons from Escanaba, 60,000 tons from St. Linace, 250,000 tons from Two Harbors, and 540,000 tons from Ashland. Charcoal pig-iron shipments to same date were only 15,-374 tons from the same harbors, but many heavy shipments were made from outside ports. Only about 350,-000 tons more will be sent forward th s year, the unprecedentedly high rates of freight having cut deeply into the profits of mining companies. An attempt to reduce S one Mount-

Important Modifications to Re Made in the Civit Service Rules.

The Comptroller of the Currency has anthorized the First National Bank of Downs, Kan., to begin with a capital of $50,000. The President has appointed John Me-Lean, of California, to be interpreter to the United States Consul General at Kanagawa, Japan.

The silver dollar circulation of the United States, which was slightly below $60,000,000 on Sept. 0, has now passed the limit, being far greater than ever before in the history of the country.

Attorney General Garland is back at his desk at Washington, and denies that he intends to resign. Rogers has also returned, and is reported to have sold his block of Pan-Electric stock for $5,000.

An encouraging circular has been sent around the Government printing office. It informed the employes that there would be no more dismissais for the present, and requested them to settle down without fear. It is rumored among the men, however. that many more changes will be made it the near future, and that new men will be appointed to fill vacancies which are to be created. Two courts-martial convened at Madrid

Saturday to try persons implicated in the recent rebellion. Fourteen prisoners were sentenced to death, including Gen. Villa-campa, three officers, five sergeants, three corporats, and two civilians. It is believed that only seven of the condemned men will be shot. There is danger of demonstra-tions in favor of the government's pardoning the prisoners. A former employe of the government printing office has preferred charges under oath against Mr. James W. White, the foreman of the bindery. The charges, it is said, are in substance that Mr. White had executed private work for Mr. Rounds and a number of congressmen to the amount of $10,000 yearly. Public Printer Benedict said he was unable to speak as to the exact nature of the charges. He said the matter would be inquired into, and he hoped, for the credit of all parties, that they would be proved untrue. The Secretary of the Interior has under consideration a proposition to allow certain tribes of Indians in the West the privilege of utilizing the grass upon the surplus lands of their reservations by allowing them to take cattle from neighboring cattlemen to pasture, the Indians to herd and care for the cattle and to receive a fair and just compensation therefor, but no white men to be allowed upon the reservations.

It is probable that an order authorizing cer tain tribes to enter into contracts with cat tlemen as outlined above will soon be issued. When Secretary Bayard returns he will Mr. Sedgwick's formal report on his desk. It is made up chiefly of extracts from Mexican statutes and records. It will be useful to Mr. Bayard, not only in the prosecution of further negotiations in regard to the claim of extra territorial juris-diction as applied by Mexico to American citizens, but in the preparation of the re-view of the Cutting episode, which Mr. Buyard will make for the use of President Cleveland in connected with his annual message, secretary Bayard has not receded from his position in the Cutting case, as has been represented, and Minister Manning's first business in Mexico will be to resume the negotiations begun by Minister Jackson, with a view to a guarantee that if the extra territorial jurisdiction statute is not repealed it shall never be enforced in the case of any American citizen. The order of the Secretary of the Navy changing the Washington navy varid into an ordinance foundry went into effect Friday. The heads of the bureaus affected by the order have been instructed to make the best arrangements possible for the transfer of such buildings, machinery, and tools as are needed by the ordnance bureau and the removal of the rest. The order has not been modified further than that the yards and docks department will not be molested, and Civil Engineer Menocal, who is in charge of that department, will retain his resi-dence and continue on duty. Some necessary unfin shed work in the steam engineering department will be completed. All the employes in the other bureaus, numbering about two bondeed discharged from this evening. ### THE GREAT DEADWOOD MYSTERY.

BY BRET HARTE.

[Copyrighted 1886, by Houghton, Mifflin & Co., and published by arrangement with them.] PART IV.

F Mrs. Rightbody's friends had been ustounded by her singular and unexpected pilgrimage to California so soon after her husbund's decease, they were still more astounded by the information, a year later, that she was engaged to be married to a Mr. Ryder, of whom only the seant history was known, that he was a Californian, and former correspondent of her husband. It was undeniable that the man was wealthy, and evidently no mere adventurer; it was rumored that he was courageous and manly; but even those who delighted in his odd humor were shocked at his grammar and slong. It was said that Mr. Maryin had but one interview with his father-in-law elect, and returned so suprenicly disjusted that the match was broken off. The horse stealing story, more or less garbled, found its way through his that pretended to decry it, yet eagerly repeated it. Only one member of the Rightbody familyand a new one-saved them from utter ostracism. It was young Mr. Ryder, the adopted son of the prospective head of the household, whose culture, manners and general elegan w fascinated and thrilled Boston with a new sensation. It seemed to many that Miss Alice should, in the vicinity of this rare exotic, forget her former enthusiasm for a professional life; but the young man was pitied by society, and various plans for diverting him from any mesalliance with the Rightbody family were concocted.

It was a wintry night, and the second anniversary of Mr. Rightbody's death, that a light was burning in his hibrary. But the dead man's chair was occupied by young Mr. Ryder, adopted son of the new proprietor of the mansion; and before him stood Alice, with her dark eyes fixed on the table. "There must have been something in it, Joe, believe na. Did you never hear your father speak of miner "Nevet,"

<sup>6</sup>But you say he was college bred, and born a gentleman, and in his youth he must have had many friends."

"Altee," said the young man gravely, "when I have done something to redeen my name and wear it again before these people, before you, it would be well to revive the past. But till then----

But Alice was not to be put down. "I remember," she went on, scarcely heeding him, "that when I came in that night papa was reading a letter and seemed to be disconcerted."

"A letter?" "Yes; but," added Alice, with a sigh, "when we found bim here insensible, there was no letter on his person. He must have destroyed "Did you ever look among his papers? If found it might be a clew." The young man glanced toward the cabinet. Alice rend his eves and answered;

"Oh, dear, no! The cabinet contained only his papers, all perfectly arranged—you know how methodical were his habits—and some old business and private letters, all carefully

"Let us see them," said the young man, ris-

They opened drawer after drawer; files upon files of letters and business papers accurately folded and filed. Suddenly Alice uttered a little cry and picked up a quaintivory paper knife lying at the bottom of a drawer. "It was missing the next day and never could be found; he must have mislaid it here.

Here was a clew. But the lower part of the drawer was filled with old letters not labeled, yet neatly arranged in files. Suddenly he stopped and said, "Put them back, Alice, at once." "Why?"

This is the drawer, said Alice eagerly,

"Some of these letters are in my father's handwriting."

"The more reason why I should see them," said the girl imperatively. "Here, you take part and I'll take part and we'll get through

There was a certain decision and independence in her manner which he had learned to respect. He took the letters and in silence read them with her. They were old college letters, so filled with boyish dreams, ambitions, aspirations, and Utopian theories, that I fear neither of these young people even recognized their parents in the dead ashes of the past. They were both grave, until Alice uttered a little hysterical cry and dropped her face in her hands. Joe was instantly beside her.

"It's nothing; Joe, nothing. Don't read it, please; please, don't. It's so funny! it's so

"It's nothing, Joe, nothing. Don't read it." But Joe had, after a slight, half-playful struggle, taken the letter from the girl. Then he read aloud the words written by his father thirty years ago:

"I thank you, dear friend, for all you say about my wife and boy. I thank you for reminding me of our boyish compact. He will ' be ready to fulfill it, I know, if he loves these his father loves, even if you should marry years later. I am glad for your sake, for both our sakes, that it is a boy. Heaven send you a good wife, dear Adams, and a daughter, to make my son equally happy."

Joe Silsbie looked down, took the halflaughing, half-tearful face in his hands, kissed her forehead, and, with tears in his grave cyes, said, "Amen!"

I am inclined to think that this sentiment was echoed heartily by Mrs, Rightbody's former acquaintances, when, a year later, Miss Alice was united to a professional gentleman of honor and renown, yet who was known to be the son of a convicted horse thief. A few remembered the previous Californian story, and found corroboration therefor; but a majority believed it a just reward to Miss Alice for her conduct to Mr. Marvin, and, as Miss Alice cheerfully accepted it in that light, I do not see why I may not end my stery with happiness to all concerned. THE END.

AMONG THE "COFFEE BOILERS."

How an Army "Pienic in the Woods" Was Broken Up by Shot and Shell. After a little while the first sergeant came to me and said: "You seem to be tired. Go to the rear with the caissons after ammunition." I handed the heavy sponge staff to another cannoncer and walked to the caissons. Mounting on the empty chests I rode to the rear, where the ammunition wagons were parked. A portion of the road we traveled over ran within three-fourths of a mile of a heavy Confederate redoubt, out of whose embrasures the muzzles of large black guns were thrust. To the right of this piece of road was an open field of thin, povertycreating soil; beyond the field was a forest. Thickly scattered among the trees, and grouped at the edge of the open field in the shade, were those cowards, the "coffee boilers." Gangs of officers' servants and many refugee negroes were there. Pack mules loaded with pots, frying pans, gripsacks, and bags of clothing stood tied to trees. White capped army wagons, with six mules harnessed to them, stood at the edge of the woods. The drivers of these wagons were drinking coffee with friendly "boilers," and they were probably frightening one another by telling blood-curdling tales of desperate but mythical battles they had been engaged in. Fires were burning brightly in the forest, and thin columns of smoke arose above the trees. I could almost smell the freshly-made Rio and the broiled bacon. It was as though a a huge picuic were going on in the woods. The scene angered me. I knew that the "coffee boilers" were almost to a man bounty-jumping cowards, and I wanted the camp broken up.

The Confederates in redoubt allowed us to pass to the rear without firing on us; but we were empty and not worth powder and shot. Arriving at the park of the amunition train we filled our amunition chests, and then began the return march. When the full caissons came out of the woods on to the portion of the road which was exposed to the fire from the fort I saw the Confederate gunners spring to their cannon. I looked at the camp of the "coffee-boilers." They were enjoying life. I leaned forward and clasped my knees with excess of joy as I realized what was about to occur. The Confederategumers were going to try to blow up our caissons. I was confident that they could not hit us, and was also confident that their attempt would bloodily disturb the camp of the "boilers" and hangers on. We broke into a trot, then into a gallop, and then into a dead run. Clouds of smoke shot forth from the redoubt, and out of these large black bails rose upward and rushed through the air, and passed, shricking shrilly, close above us to descend to the camp of the "boilers."

It was a delightful scene. I hugged my knees and rocked to and fro, and laughed until my fieshless ribs were sore. Shells swept above me and burst in the woods. Shot howled past and cut large trees down, and they fell with a crash among the frying pans and coffee pots. Teamsters sprang into their wagons, or onto their saddle mules, and savagely plied their whips and hastened away from the pasture field. Negro servants loosened their pack mules and hung on to the loads of tinware as they, yelling at the top of their voices, ran for the rear. Men, clad and armed as soldiers, skurried as frightened rabbits, kiding in holes, lying prone on the earth, dropping behind logs. Through the dust and smoke and uproar I saw men fall, saw others mangled by chunks of shell, and saw one, struck fairly by an exploding shell, vanish. Enormously pleased, I hugged my lean legs, and laughed and laughed again. It was the most refreshing sight I had seen for weeks. Our caissons, each drawn by six galloping horses, passed safely through the fire and entered the protecting woods, and, moving rapidly across the blood chilling belt where the spent balls fell and the wounded lay, were soon within the battle line, and I was again engaged in helping to waste the good powder and shot and shell - Frank Wilkeson in Chicago

Removal of Superabundant Flesh. More than 50,000 copies of Mr. William Blaikie's little manual, "How to Get Strong," have already been sold, and the author has received congaatulatory letters from Mr. Gladstone, Mr. Thomas Hughes, the marquis of Lorne, Dr. Me-Cosh, President Ehot, Mr. Beecher, and many other notables. He has a scrapbook of 300 pages filled with complimentary epistles and newspaper clipplings concerning a volume that has had a sale larger than that of any other book on athletics ever published. An exjudge of New York city has been reducing his weight to the extent of thirty pounds by horseback exercise, and Mr. Blaikie declares that any exercise that causes perspiration for half an hour daily will be followed by a similar result. He has witnessed many demonstrations of his belief in this respect, and he professionally advises his corpulent friends that no system of dietetics is half so efficacious for the removal of superabudant flesh as the perspiration that comes from daily exercise in the open air. He intends to communicate his views on this subject to President Cleveland. "It is surprising to note," remarks Tue London News, "now large a portion of humanity is perturbed over the question of far and its preponderance." Mr. Binikie once lost a pound in weight by rowing a boat for twenty minutes.-The Aigonant.

PULLMAN'S MODEL CITY.

REMARKABLE ACHIEVEMENT OF ONE MAN'S BRAIN.

The Illinois Town in Which the World's Sleeping Cars are Built-Utopia Realized. Apparently-Gas Works, Water Works, Theatres, Gardens and Dairy.

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.-If you want to hear expressions of genuine astom shment go down to the town of Pullman and accompany one of the many visitors sure to be found there on a tour through the magic city of the west, From the moment the tourist sets foot in the place till the hour of bis departure an exclamation point may be seen glistening upon the end of his tongue. Cause for wonder is found at every turn; it is impossible to lose sight of the remarkable; and the most astounding fact of all is that the industrial and social giant is searce out of its swaldling clothes, standing m its beauty and strength where less than awindled into a swamp and a low-shored lake. There is a hand-some rail way station of stone half a dozen years stone and brick, from which hourly PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH. trains depart for Chicago, that other magie, but less perfect city, a dozen miles away. Wide asphalt boulevards, studded with flower plots and decked with fountains, sweep up to the station. Twenty rods from the station is a hotel, somewhat famous for its cuisine, and architecturally delightful. Near by is the areade building, containing twenty stores, the post, express and telegraph offices, bank, public library and a theatre of first-class appointments. There are no other mercantile houses than these in Pullman, and no place but here, save in the commodious market house hard by, is trade carried on. Mercantile Pullman is all under one roof, and an admirable aggregation it is, too, with its wide hall, corresponding to a village street; its prosperous stores, the balcony and offices above, and the soft light streaming abundantly in from side and sky lights.

PULLMAN BAILWAY STATION. To the north of the station, and ranged for more than balf a nule along the track, but with miniature lakes and other landscape decorations between the buildings and the rails, is Pullman the factory Here are acres and acres of great buildings, through whose windows palare and freight cars may be seen in the various stages of construction or repair, flanked by acres more filled with hundreds of other cars waiting their turn at the workmen's hands. There are cars from the far east and the far west, the plain, primitive Pullmans with their funny little windows and few devices for adorument side by side with gorgeous Pullmans of latest type; and there, in a secluded corner, unused but not unhonored, is the pioneer Pullman, the one for whose first journey the potentate of this town personally solicited passengers twenty years ago. There are also other great worksa paper car wheel factory, a huge foundry, and two steel mills. In the center of the group is the tamous. Corliss, engine which so many millions of Americans saw at the Centennial, the chief source of power in this mechanical marvel Right behind it is the vast tower containing a water reservoir and sewage tank, a landmark for scores of miles

Unity of design runs through all this group of factories, and architectural effect was in no wise neglected by the builders. It is no huddle of gloomy and grimy shops, for there are lines of beauty in the facade, and the softness of simple decorations gives charm and the solidity of corner and center towers lends something like grandeur to the long wings. Even the stone wall surrounding the shops is not the kind of wall with which industrial works are usually protected. This is an art wall, and the gateways and timekeepers' lodges, with vine-covered posts and graceful caps, would admirably become an English country seat. In no feature of this one-man city, the handiwork of one architect, has the value of beauty-its commercial value, indeed-been neglected. A fundamental idea in the construction of Pullman was to surround laborers, not only in their homes, but in the shops wherein they toil, with objects of beauty and comfort.

The application of this principle is nowhere more obvious and admirable than in the home part of Pullman. The streets are broad, and there is no fence--that modern abomination inherited from a feudal time, when even neighbors were feared, and walls and moats were the necessities of every householder. Instead, bits of bright lawn separate the homes from the walks. Though all of the streets cross each other at right angles, there is no oppressive menotony, for the stiff lines are broken here and there by parks, squares or the setting in of a church, school or other public building.

The same effect has been accomplished in the design of the dwellings. Where a more economical builder or a less ingenious architect would have constructed rows of barracks, in which every house would look just like every other house, Pullman displays great variety in roof, window, chimney and ornament, giving to every dwelling in the better a dunajor part of the town a distinct individuality, the whole yet making its perspective harmonious and regular. The front walls of the houses are all the same distance from the street, and the window lines are quite uniform. It is chiefly in artistic treatment of the sky line that variety has been given to the whole and individuality to each. Pullman has its own water and gas works. The streets are all well paved. There are no barns, one large brick stable accommodating all the horses in town. There are baseball grounds, a gymnasium, bicycle track, rowing course, etc., with handsome view stands, containing 1,000 or more numbered chairs. The Pullman Athletic association has a reputation far and i: ar. Pullman's drainage system is well nigh perfect. The sewage is all collected in a great basin beneath the water tower, and thence pumped ~1,000,000 gallons daily—to Pullman farm and garden, torce miles away. In no other city on cather side of the Atlantic Las this method of ensporing of a town's sewage been so storessful as here. The liquid sewage is drained from the garden into the lake, but is so partiall by filtration through the son that the waters of the lake are inhabited by fish, and may even be drunk. Pullman garden this year raised a crop sufficter.

cient to fill eighty freight cars, some of which was consumed in the town, but the bulk being marketed abroad. A dairy farm supplies fresh milk and butter to the whole popula-

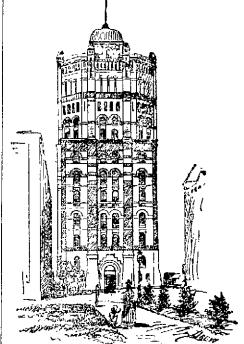

There are nearly 4,000 workmen in Pullman industries and more than 2,000 in Pullman's car works alone. One-half of these worknen are foreigners, but they are for the most part skilled artisans and men of intelligence. Their wages rank as high, at least, as those of workmen in similar lines throughout the country. Men in the hammer shop earn $4.50 a day, carvers $2, decorators $2.50 to $5.25, stripers and gilders $3.50 to $4, and simple laborers $1.25 to $1.40. The average earnings of the operatives, laborers included, was a little less than $600 for each man during last year.

These workmen are as much a stock in trade with the Pullman company as the coaches which traverse the earth or the machinery which turns out freight cars for the great railways at the rate of thirty a day. The workmen inhabit Pullman houses, pay Pullman rent, therefore, and make up the community which renders the gas works, the water works, the garden and the dairy farm profitable-which pays the rental of the stores, offices and theatre in the Arcade, of the stalls in the market houses and supports the churches and school buildings which Pullman owns and leases for public uses.

Pullman as an industrial enterprise must not only have work to do and workmen, but all the men must be kept reasonably busy, else the inhabitants will seek employment elsewhere and the houses will stand vacant and loss result to the one real owner the place boasts of. Here is a feature of industrial Pullman which most cities have overlooked. The workmen and their families are the wards of the proprietors, and their property is his. The risk is the owner's, too, and upon his success in keeping the wheels turning and the hands employed depends his own hope of profit. Long continued idleness of even a portion of the employes would be disastrous to the interests of the proprietor.

The result of this unique relationship between employer and men has already borne fruit in extraordinary executive energy and in a most admirable understanding as to wages. The "piece" system prevails as to full two-thirds of the work done, and prices are so acceptably scaled that, in the words of an employe, "a good man is bound to make the money and an inefficient man will not find it to his interest to remain in the town," As there is no idleness anywhere visible, but evidences of prosperity on every hand, it is fair to presume that the good men largely predominate, and that the wages are satisfactory. But this is not all. The piece scale is a sliding one. When Pullman, for instance, finds it necessary, in order to secure work for the plant and men, to take contracts at figures lower than any other bidder, the piece scale is cut accordingly. If, on a succeeding contract, better prices are obtained by the company, the earnings of the men are correspondingly increased. Thus, not long ago, the freight car shops of these works turned out several thousand cars at a cost to the purchaser said to have been lower than cars of like pattern had ever been made for in this country.

In order to make sure of employment for his tenants Pullman not only constructs and repairs his own sleeping coaches but builds passenger, freight, express, postal and private cars in large quantities. He also manufactures street ears, and has even built houses and engaged in a general line of carpentry work. In this field his methods were rather interesting and characteristic of the enterprise which is associated with his name. During Chicago's recent building boom several competent men were constantly employed making bids on the specifications of architects, securing many contracts. Then a small army of men were set at work in the shops here preparing, under the most favorable circumstances and with all the advantages of machinery and appliances, every piece of timber set down in the architect's bills. When finished the whole was transported to the site, and the erection there made so quickly as to astonish all beholders. Under Pullman's master hand large houses grewfull-sized and well-nigh perfect almost in a night. At times 500 men have been employed in this building and carpentry department. In addition to these and the other enterprises already mentioned, which are directly or indirectly under Pullman's control, there are extensive brickyards which employ men in summer and ice houses to give them work in winter.

THE WATER TOWER.

Of course Puliman is a profitable investment. The enterprise quickly made a rich city of waste land. The projectors manufactured their own brick, built their own sewers, directly constructed their 1,500 buildings and did everything by wholesale. Lumber was purchased by the train load, house hardware by the car, nails by the ton. The rentals are doubtless high enough to give the usual 10 or 12 per cent, returns upon a sum equal to the new value of the land and the amount the buildings and street improvements would have cost if constructed in the ordinary manner, and 15 or 20 per cent, on the actual cost to the Pullman company. In the official financial statement of the company I find the "real estate and Idant, 505 acres of land, Chicago car works, houses for workmen, and other improvements at Pullman, Ills.," put among the assets at $6,500,000. The actual cost was probably about one-half this sum. In the income account is the item—"manufacturing profits and rentals, $700,000."

Pullman has only begun its career as an industrial city. It was planned for a population of 50,000, and already enterprises are projected which will give employment to several thousand persons including many of the women and some of the children of the place. As an industrial city l'anguan de-pends upon the success of its factories. In this respect it is on the same level with other manufacturing towns. But since the first dweller set up his household here the population has steady grown, and the sharpest-eyed cannot as yet perceive signs of retrogression or failure. Industrial and superficial Pullman is unique Industrial and superneial Futinian is unique and promising. Of the even more interesting social Puliman—Pullman beneath the surface—I shall have to speak in another letter.

AGRICULTURAL.

Two thousand head of cattle are quarantined at Chicago, many of them affected with plearo-pneumonia and all having been exposed to the disease. Twenty-nine guards, employed by the Government, are on duty at the stock yards and distilleries, and every effort is being made to prevent the spread of the

The following calculation, illustrating the value of good roads, is credited to the president of the Engineers' Club, of Philadelphia: Take a load which one horse can draw on level iron rails. To draw this load on a smooth, level asphalt road, will require one and two-third horses; on good Belgian pavement, three and one-third horses; on ordinary Belgian pavement, five horses; on good cobblestone road, seven horses; on or dinary earth road, twenty horses; on sand road, forty horses.

Mr. T. E. Hamilton, who received the highest of four premiums offered by the Maryland agricultural society for best cured hams, uses the following recipe: To every one hundred pounds of meat eight pounds of best pork salt, two ounces saltpetre, two pounds brown sugar, one and one-fourth ounces potash and four gallons of water. Mix and pour over the hams after they have lain in the tub two days, having been rubbed with fine salt when put in. Let them remain in this pickle for six days, then let dry several days before smoking.

Col. F. D. Curtis, a well-known writer on agricultural topics, says in Our Country Home: Last year we tried several men in cultivating with a splendid mare, and all of them had to give it up. At last the boy on the farm volunteered and did the entire job with the same animal and had no trouble. A person in the next field would not know that he was at work, so mildly and quietly was the work done. That boy had horse serse, and the horse knew it. In five minutes they understood each other, and were friends. The other fellows never should go near a horse. How hard it is for the poor horse to fall into every body's hands.

Yankee ingenuity, which makes goldon drip syrups from paper rags and sulphuric acid, jellies from old boots, and butter from hogs' intestines, has succeed ed in inventing a substitute for milk which, it is said, the cows themselves cannot distinguish from the real article The owner of the secret, who is willing to sell his knowledge for a sufficient remuneration, is at present operating in the vicinity of Chicago. He makes the milk from chemicals, puts it beside genuine milk, asks doubting Thomases to taste both, and if they are not then convinced, sets the pans away over night, and an equal amount of cream is found on both in the morning.

A writer in The Husbandman laments the loss of so much liquid manure, of which the farmers of this section take but little heed, and suggests the following plan of saving and utilizing it: Have a water tight plank trench at the rear of the platform upon which the cattle stand, into which straw, sawdust or other absorbents may be thrown, the whole to be removed daily and placed in a heap with straw added in sufficient quantities to absorb all the liquid from the stable. This arrangement is within reach of everyone keeping stock whether live, ten, or fifty head, and if the experience of everyone who may be induced to adopt it agrees with my own, they will regret the loss they have sustained for years, and wonder they so long delayed a work so important in its results.

October is decidedly best. As soon as the leaves will separate at the natural septum, on passing the hand down a a branch with a stripping motion, the tree is fully lit for digging. Besides the shortness of the available spring season, there is the ill condition of the soil for planting as early as is desirable for success. In October, on the contrary, the soil is dry and friable, and not injured by the tramping or ramming necessary to close it into complete contact with every root, and there is leisure to do the work well both in selecting and in setting out the trees. If air chambers are left among the roots mould will form there and lead to decay. The main thing is to dig the trees early, as soon as they are ripe. The wounds will then heal over before winter

Considerable excitement prevails near Akron, owing to the sudden death of four steers which were purchased at the the power of its reasoning. It must like a new man, I cheerfully recommend it cheerfully recommend it to suffering humanity." Sold by druggists. George Driesbach went to Chicago and purchased twenty-five head of three year-old steers, which arrived in Akron Sunday, Sept. 19. They were driven direct to Mr. Driesbach's farm, three and a half miles southwest of town, and did not come in contact with any other cattle. Two of the cattle died on Wednes day and two more on Thursday Dr. Craine, veterinary surgeon, of Akron, held a post mortem, and pronounced them cases of pleuro-pneumonia. Dr. Fair, of Cleveland, consulting veterinary surgeon of the live stock commission of Ohio, made an examination of the remaining twenty-one head last Saturday. Drs. Craine and Barnett, of Akron, were present and assisted in the examination. All the herd were found to be sick, and a critical examination was made of six bead. Their temperature was found to be ranging from 103 to 107 degrees, respirations and pulse very much quickened, a slight discharge from the eyes and nose, knuckling on the hind fetlock, and the lungs more or less involved, es pecially the right. One of the weakest was killed and the lungs and pleura were found inflamed, all other organs appar ently healthy. Dr. Fair ordered the herd quarantined, and will make further examinations in a few days. The doctor says although the symptoms are suspicious he has his doubts as to whether the disease is contagious pleuro-pucumonia or not and that it can only be ascertained by future examinations, as the animal slaughtered did not present sufficient well-marked symptoms to warrant a positive opinion -- Ohio Farmer.

How to Ship Apples to Europe.

The demand for American apples in Great Britain has increas d of late years to such an extent, that for the season beginning August, 1885, and ending May, 1886, the total shipments to the three principal ports, Liverpool, London and Glasgow, aggregated 862,000 barrels. The magnitude of the business has attracted the attention of many who have no means of ascertaining the requirements for its proper transaction; and numerous inquiries have been addressed to us for this information. These facts induce us to believe that instructions as to the proper course to be pursued will be welcome to a large number of people throughout the apple growing

The most important point to be observed is the packing. The bar rels should be new ones made for the purpose The filling should be done on a platform of boards, and not on the ground. All wormy or bruised fruit should be rejected. The size is not a matter of prime importance. The first layer of apples should be very fine, and of uniform size, should be placed in the barrels stems down, as the bottom becomes the head when the barrel is filled; the remainder should be poured in from baskets, care being used not to bruise any in the operation, and the barrel being well shaken after each basketful until it appears full. More should then be placed on the top projecting at least haif the thickness of an apple above the top of the chime of the barrel, the head placed on these apples, and with a screw press gently forced into the barrel. The barrels must be well nailed, and lining hoops nailed around both the heads to keep them in place.

The shipping ark must be put on the head of the barrel, and it is Discovery, taken in connection with Elec a matter of small importance what true Bitters. We guarantee them always that mark is A plain steneil is far old by Z. T. Baltzly.

4-y-1. a matter of small importance what the best-the plainer the better, but shippers who send often must remember not to use their brands except for the best parcels. If they wish to send fruit that is not up to their standard it is better to vary their mark, as a reputation for good packing is easily established by any shipper, but may be destroyed entirely if the same brand is used on a barrel of inferior fruit Some brands of fruit hardly need to be shown at the sales so well has their reputation become established.

In exporting apples, all that is necessary is to send them to New York apple receivers.

They procure shipping permits Hood's Sarsaparilla now. It will give you the steamship lines, pay the untold wealth in health, srength, & energy. from the steamship lines, pay the freight to New York if desired, attend to the shipment and pay the cartage, obtain bid of landing, and send a copy to the shipper. They see that the apples are properly handled here. For these services they make no direct charge. The only commission is 5 per cent. charged in Europe. The steamship lines all compete for apple shipments, and nearly all of them take extra care to see that the apples are properly placed on their vessels.

All exported apples are so d at auction immediately after landing The delivery must, by a rule of trade be made within twenty-four hours

What Constitutes a Great Newspaper? In our opinion, a great newspaper. to be worthy of the title, must have a harmonious and thorough development. Not only must it have circulation and income, show enterprise in obtaining and publishing the news, but it must lead public thought and direct public opinion by the superiority of its information and nity in every large social and political movement as a force which can both make and unmake. Such a position cannot be attained by a perpetual blowing of trumpets and beating of drums. It is gaine only when the readers of the newspaper are made aware that, upon all questions of public moment, it is willing to take an honest and strong, even if for the time being, an unpopular, has espoused by vigorous, logical and convincing arguments.—Boston

A BIT OF HISTORY.

The Navarre Independent dives into the musty recesses of the past and says:

The city of Massillon is a namesake of Jean Baptist Massillon, the druggists. 100 Doses $1. most excellent of French divines He was born in 1663, the son of a notary, at Hieres, in Provence. He was a efforts to conciliate those whose envy his superior powers had aroused. He was the orator at the funeral of the Duchess of Orleans in 1723. In 1717 he was appointed bishop of Clermont, and died, resident on his diocese, in September, 1742, at the age of seventy-nine His works are published complete in fourteen volumes.

Catarrh

Is a very prevalent and exceedingly disagreeable disease, liable, if neglected, to develop into serious consumption. Being a constitutional disease, it requires a constitutional remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilia, which, acting through the blood, reaches every part of the system, effecting a radical and permanent cure of catarrh in even its most severe forms. Made only by C. I. Hood & Co., Lowelt, Mass.

Tired, Languid, Dull.

ANovel Feature in Investments.

The following score was made Friday The whole country after having undergone a period of depression is now asking itself, what business has least been affected Such a business, industry or corporation, that can make a better showing now than before the crisis attracts the attention of capital, merits the confidence of investors and is being eagerly sought for.

There is such a business, and it has here-tofore been monopolized by English and Scotch capital until some three hundred milions have been invested in the ranche. and cattle business of this great country.

Foremost amongst the strongest, richest and most successful American Companies stand the United States Land and Investment Company, 145 Broadway, New York, which is now offering $500,000 first mortgage 6 per cent. 10 year bonds, for subscription at '90 cash, or at par, upon a novel installment feature which appeals to the farmer as well as the banker, the clerk and mechanic as well as the milliontire, and to all who desire to invest their savings at better cates of interest than any bank will al-

The company issues certificates of indebtedness in one and five dollars, each representing an installment, and when the investor has pure hased $50 of these certificates he becomes cutitled to a $100 gold bond, first mortgage, bearing 6 per cent, interest, which he can obtain upon presenting his certificates or forwarding them by letter to the company's office, at 145 Broadway,

The remaining $50 due on the bond being payable to the company in monthly in stailments not exceeding $5.

The bond commences to draw interest on delivery, the same as if fully paid. In addition to which the company gives as a bonus, fee, one fully paid up share of stock of the value of $25.

Those desiring to buy their bonds outright for eash can do so at 10 per cent. discount in $100, $500 or $1.000 bonds and receive one five or ten shares of stock free The bonds are secured by property owned absolutely by the company, estimated to be worth $3,000,000, and this money received from sale of bonds will be invested in cattle, the income from which it is estimated will yield 30 per cent, upon the stock after paying 6 per cent, on the bonds.

Applications are being forwarded in great numbers daily, and all those who desire to subscribe should send at once for prospectuses and full information to the United States Land and Investment Company, 145 Broadway, New York.—The N. Y. Finan-

Help to supplement the lecture

The wrath of the just will fall upon Prosecutor Welty in due sea-

Captain Crawford will be elected by a large majority. Moreover, he will be sworn in and act as Sheriff. They are still boring for natural gas at Massillon. What's the matter with tapping John McBride?—New Philadelphia Advocate. Sewers are the veins of a city, and their extension should be encouraged. Every foot of new sewer put down adds to the credit of the city abroad and its health at home. The strike is over. The men are at work. The ditches did not run with blood. The sun continues to rise and set and the bubble blown by a few outsiders is bursted.

The Navarre Independent pays this little compliment:

The Massillon lecture course is an is to be congratulated for their untiring efforts.

The committee of the Council upon whom devolved the duty of securing a bond from the Schuyler Electric Light Company failed to do so. In the late trouble of that corporation the city was without any protection, and it was only by sheer good luck that it escaped so easily.

The National Banks have been accused of treasuring up trade dollars with the expectation of urging Congress to pass a bill for their redemption, yet according to the latest repo: t of the Comptroller of the Currency, the whole amount in their possession was not quite two millions.

Major McKinley has been ad dressing political meetings throughout the county this week. The mention of Captain Crawford's candidacy is always greeted with enthusiasm and the people are expressing their disgust at the Welty-Smith-Leininger act of cowardice a few of the Democratic convention said: Daniel Worley, of Canton, introduced resolutions endorsing Charles Jenkins for Congress, the nominee of the Greenback party and labor con-

It shows the sychophancy of Worley and the very large following back of him in this proceeding.

The managers of the Industrial School aim at the root of half the troubles of the poor, by seeking to educate the children to help themselves. Our poor people are poor because they do not know how to cut and make for themselves, and they cannot utilize what they have. To dissipate this ignorance is the object of this school, and whoever helps it in any way, does just so much toward relieving misery, and lowering taxes

It is said that Alonzo Smith does not like the criticisms being heaped upon him. It is certainly disagreeable enough to be obliged to do it But the ancient adage which says "spare the rod and spoil the child," also applies to county commissioners.

NEWSPAPERARCHIVE®.

Alonzo must retire on three counts; First, for the unholy ballot cast for Leininger; second, for assisting in the injudicious use of county funds; third, for discriminating in favor of one part of the county.

The Cleveland Plain Dealer is making strenuous efforts to prove that Brother McBride is adored by the miners of the State. The words of many miners are quoted, but strangely enough no recomendation from any men of this class appear, who live in this vicinity. There are plenty of good, honest and prominent miners in this valley; why is not the Plain Dealer able to secure any letters of credit from them? The reason is obvious.

Wonderfully fine instincts develop within our Democratic friends as the penitentiary outrages are exposed. They close their eye and shudder when the story of the skinning of a dead convict is told, and say that it is too indecent to be repeated. It is indecent, it is inexpressibly horrible But as escaping sewer gas cannot be neutralized by spreading perfumes, neither can silence correct these outrages. It is sometimes necessary to endure a good deal to effect a radical care.

This, from the New York Tribnne is commended to papers like the Alliance Leader and Mt. Vernon Tri-

Just now the Tribune has three observations to offer. First, it is not the part either of wisdom or of publie spirit to attempt to divide the counties. The State is one and indivisible. What makes for the prosperity of one section makes for the prosperity of the rest Second, the people in adopting the canal policy adopted it in all that the name implied. If the canals were worth making free they are worth taking care of, worth developing to their full capacity. Third, the people through their chosen representatives in the Legislature last winter appropriated $200,000 for the purpose of increasing the lockage capac ity of the Erie and Oswego canals. That act certainly looked like an indorsement of the enlargement

The Proof.

The proof of our estimate of the superiority of the Republican memassured fact, and the U. C. D. Club | bership is in the renomination of the Republican Representatives almost without exception.

The proof of our estimate of the inferiority of the Democratic representation is in the retirement by their constituents of nearly one-half of the 184 Democratic members of Congress.-New Orleans Picayune,

Sixty Million.

Sixty million people in the United States are daily consumers of bread artificially raised and lightened, yet statistics show that one-half the baking powders on the market are criminally impure. RAILROAD MATTERS. A meeting of representatives of coal roads was held in the office of General Manager Townsend, of the C., L. & W several days ago, for the purpose of forming a pool in Central Ohio. The Hocking Valley, Ohio Central, Baltimore & Ohio, Lake Erie & Western and C., L. & W. were represented. The first three already have an agreement for the maintenance of rates, and the Lake Erie & Western gave it its support a few weeks ago. The Cleveland, Lorain & Wheeling has not yet decided upon joining the association.—Leader.

Catarrh Is a very prevalent and exceedingly disagreeable disease, liable, if neglected, to develop into serious consumption. Being a constitutional disease, it requires a constitutional remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilia, which, acting through the blood, reaches every part of the system, effecting a radical and permanent cure of catarrh in even its most severe forms. Made only by C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.

A GENUINE LABORER

Replies to Democratic Screeds Hidden Beneath the Mask of Labor.

And Has a Word or Two to Say About "Senator" Coxey.

EDITOR INDEPENDENT:-After reading a lot of gush in the Stark County Democrat, dished up by about two individuals of Canton, over different nom de plumes, we are constrained, with your permission, to take a little hand in the matter. Last week's Democrat had an article, signed "Mechanic," and headed "Me-Kinley's Rot," in which the writer displays considerable ignorance. He quotes McKinley's vote on the Morrison surplus bill, which he no doubt takes from a report submitted by a committee of Knights of Labor which was sent to Washington to lobby some bills, and the above bill being the only one they report McKinley as opposing, this Canton "Mechanic" wishes to make a big ado over it and asks for an explanation. If "Mechanic," or any other Democrat, is open to conviction, we would advise him to get McKinley's speech, delivered in Congress, on the surplus bill, which will show his position very fully We wish to say right here that all the other bills recommended by the laboring committee received McKinley's hearty support, which is confirmed in the printed report sent to all the lodges of Knights of Labor by their committee, and yet a few demagogues of Canton would prostitute the best interests of the Knights of Labor to try and trump up a combination candidate to defeat a man who has always stood by every labor bill that came up. What more, as workingmen, can we ask? The action of the delegates who left the hall while attending the labor convention at Canton a few days ago, is highly commended by all the Knights of Labor in this vicinity. That scheme struck life at the last district convention of the State into canal and anti-canal Knights of Labor, held at Canton last July, and we have had our eye on it ever since. Chapman received notices, etc., of the labor convention, but being satisfied that it was a scheme and a blow at the best interests of the order, they were treated with contempt-which accounts for the Chapman Assembly not being represented.

In conclusion we would say that the immortal seven displayed an unlimited amount of American gall when they placed J. S. Coxey on the finance conmittee. Just think of it! A man who pays the wages to his men that Coxey does, championing the laboring man's cause. Why, it is an insult to honest toil. This man Coxey grinds his men down to the very lowest wages. Would it not look better to pay his men an honest day's wages than to cramp them and appropriate the surplus to luxuries? Yet he poses as the laboring man's friend.

The above is a combination that we hope all honest voters will repudiate Very resp'y,
A LABORER, and give the cold shoulder in November

The Industrial School.

At a meeting of the teachers of the Industrial School held at Mrs. Shettler's last Saturday afternoon, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Miss Minnie Dunn, superintendent; Mrs. Clement Russell, assistant superintendent, and Mrs. Howard J. Watkins, secretary and treasurer. A competent work committee was appointed, who will prepare all garments to be made by the children, thus lightening the work of the teachers and preserving uniformity of work among the scholars. There will be another meeting of teachers and members of committees, and all who are willing to assist in any way, at Mrs. Shettler's Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Good work was done last year, leading us to hope for grand results this winter, but we need the hearty co operation of all old teach ers and many new ones, and a more commodious and better ventilated room Let there be a full attendance,

M. A. Duxx, Sup't.

Two hundred energetic young pusiness men of Zanesville, organized a Board of Trade upon March 20th, 1886. As a first step they furnished office rooms and issued some ten thousand circulars, a manufacturing point. In this way they are bringing many new industries into the place, and are having a substantial boom.-Elyria Telephone.

Care for the Children

Children feel the debility of the changing seasons, even more than adults, and they become cross, peevish, and uncontrollable. The blood should be cleansed and the system invigorated by the use of Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"Last Spring my two children were vaccinated. Soon after, they broke all out with running sores, so dreadful I thought I should lose them. Hood's Sarsaparilla cured them completely; and they have been healthy ever since. I do feel that Hood's Sarsaparilla saved my children to me." Mrs. C. L. THOMPSON, West Warren, Mass.

Purify the Blood

Hood's Sarsaparilla is characterized by three peculiarities: 1st, the combination of remedial agents; 2d, the proportion; 3d, the process of securing the active medicinal qualities. The result is a medicine of unusual strength, effecting cures hitherto unknown. Send for book containing additional evidence.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla tones up my system, purifies my blood, sharpens my appetite, and seems to make me over." J. P. Thompson, Register of Deeds, Lowell, Mass. "Hood's Sarsaparilla beats all others, and is worth its weight in gold." 1. BARRINGTON, 130 Bank Street, New York City.

There will be quarterly meeting at the U.B. church next Saturday and Sunday. Services on Saturday at 2 p. m. Services at 10:30 a. m. Sunday in connection with which the communion will be administered. Rev. W. B. Leggett, P. E., will have charge of the services.

General William Booth, of England, the founder and head of the entire Salvation Army, is now in America, and will attend one meeting in the Northern and one in the Southern Divisions of Ohio. The one for the Northern Division will be held in Massillon, some time next month, and hosts of the faithful, from all parts of the State may then be expected in far greater numbers than on the Fourth of July.

An important lease was effected last week by which the well known firm of A. J. Humberger & Son, dry goods merchants, are to take possession of the large double room in Governor Warwick's new block, as soon as it is completed. This is one of the largest and handsomest rooms in the city, and the firm promise to fill it with an equally large and handsome stock. Pending the change in location, they are selling out at greatly reduced prices.

Missionary festival services were held morning and afternoon at the German Lutheran church, on East Tuscarawas street Sunday. In the morning Prof. Pfleuger, of the Capital University, Columbus, preached in German, and in the afternoon in both English and German. Rev. P. J. After having paid four thousand dollars for Canton, which he intends to use for park purposes, Mr. J. C. Dueber, with Mr. Thomas Melbourne and Mr. George B. Freese, turned his eyes toward the setting sun and drove down Main street into the business part of Massillon. Mr. Dueber then examined the stone lame man, who has never been employed quarries surrounding the town, made arrangements for brick, coal, iron and wood for his new works. He would probably have been glad to engage our many competent mechanics, but the rush of business in this part of the city prevented their accepting other engagements. This was his first visit and Mr. Dueber was so favorably impressed that he at once directed the architect to make the new buildings face the west, ordered switches to be built from our railroads, and is now writing a petition to our city council to have Dueberville accepted as an addition to this city.

ENDED AT LAST.

The Water Works Men Get What They Ask.

Strangers and Strikers are Now at Work, and the Nun will Again Rice on Schedule Time.

The strike of the water works diggers is at last over, and the streets are being torn up at the rate of nearly a mile a day. To say the Massillon men were mad when the Pittsburg express arrived Monday, bringing about sixty laborers, who were to get a dollar and a half a day, is drawing it mild. They persisted in believing that they were to be victimized and thrown out of a job, while outsiders should take their places at no less wages than they asked. This high feeling was entirely unnecessary, as Mr. Miller, the foreman, told half a dozen of the strikers that the services of all would be utilized at a dollar and a half a day. But those who had no personal interest any way, insisted upon holding a meeting, and a meeting had to be held. Strikers and strangers mixed in this assemblage, the strangers having announced their determination to stav out unless the Massillon men should be reinstated. The only business transacted was to send a committee for Mr. Miller, to tell them in a body just what he expected to do.

While they waited, a score of merry hearted fellows jumped over Mr. Robert Folger's fence, and proceeded to strip his apple trees. They bravely con. tinued their pastime, notwithstanding that one of the ladies of the house requested their departure. Policemen were finally sent for, and the trespassers took occasion to mingle with the crowd as they came into view.

Finally Mr. Miller arrived, and told them very clearly that all the men, from Pittsburg and from Massillon, could have work at a dollar and a half a day This satisfied everybody except one by the company He proceeded to lay down the law to Mr. Miller, who, in one of his flights of eloquence drove off.

All members of the Council were present on time Wednesday evening. The most of the session was spent in settling up the amount due Contractor Crooks for sewer work not in the original specifications. The members were reckless in ordering street crossings, but they might do things much worse. The Council has been holding semi-monthly sessions lately, and as a result routine business comes up in such quantities as to exclude the discussion of other

MISCELLANEOUS.

The City Solicitor explained that cities had no power to compel railroad companies to put up safety gates at railroad crossings. This news was very arranging his French classes, and thus disappointing, and the Council must now fall back upon moral sussion. Mr. Williams moved that the street and alley committee confer with the Engineer in regard to grade of Plum street sidewalk in front of Shauf's building. Carried.

Mr. Lieghley moved that Mr. S. R. Wells be permitted to lay tiling across a private alley adjoining his property. Carried.

Mr. Williams objected to the crossing from the church to Dr. Royer's, and Mr. George Smith, of Hagerstown, after a lively ten-minute discussion Mr. Oehler explained that he did not mean that crossing any way, but from the church to the southwest corner.

Mr. Snyder thought that all street intersections on Prospect street needed crossings as badly as any mentioned. It was suggested that as long as the city was going it wholesale he might include them in the original motion. Later on Mr. Snyder discovered another alley on West Main street, and dropped that

Said W. J. Amos, the fish man, the other day: "I for one am heartily in favor of establishing a regular fish market in town. With the wagons scattered as they now are, the first man buyers meet makes the sale; but with one place for the business we can have genuine competition, and purchasers can select their goods. The city should give us some place, and have it kept scrupulously clean. If the sidewalk in front of the park, on Main street, should be selected for the purpose, I, for one, will be very matter. The fish stands about town are not especially beautiful, they occupy space on the street intended for other purposes, and for any one who is fastidious as to his marketing are too far apart. The city authorities should direct them to take the one place, and thus a very decent market would be estab-

Assigned.

The sheriff closed the well known establishment of Howard J. Watkins Saturday night. Monday morning he assigned to Otto E. Young, for the benefit of his creditors. The liabilities are estimated at fifteen thousand dollars, and the assets at eighteen. Mr. Watkinshas made nothing but friends in Massillon and they hope for a happy outcome from his present difficulties. The crowds that have been thronging the store of A. J. Humberger & Son to attend their closing out sale before moving into their magnificent new rooms in the Warwick Block, have been the talk of the town. The place is jammed from morning until night, and of course it would not be so was it not for the big reductions that have been made.

TO ADVERTISERS.

The regular circulation of the INDK-PENDENT is steadily increasing, the campaign list is large, and a majority will renew for the entire year; there is no longer any question but that it has a larger circulation than any other paper in Massillon and Stark county. These are facts which it will profit you to remember. The causes are simply because the INDEPENDENT publishes all the news, and that, too, first handed. It is the only Massillon paper that sends a representtative to the City Council, or that can be relied upon to have a reporter present at every meeting of public importance.

A Dinner at the Holborn-The Old Cock Tavern - A Disgruntled Waiter - Fees and Fee-Givers - Living in Apartments, Etc., Etc.

Psyccial Correspondence 1 LONDON, Sept. 24.-1 write this letter in the very heart of the greatest city of the world. All around me throbs the life blood of London, and within a few minutes' walk of me is the center from which go out the wires which affect every nation and every market. A stone's throw away is Charing Cross, with its trains and buses leading to all parts of London and England, and below this the Strami, with its everlasting stream of valides and men. I go to the top of my sirect, a block away, and Trafalgar square, with its giant column of Nelson, with the great bronze lions lying at its feet, greets my eyes, and down below, not far off, are the houses of parliament, where to-night Parnell is having a tussle with the government about old Ireland. Hyde Park, Pall Mall and Piccaditly, with its clubs, are within walking distance, and all about me is the London of history and literature, as well as the great tilly of business activity.

Just across the street Benjamin Franklin lived when he came here to advocate the cause of the Colonists in 1771. Above this clands the Golden Cross hotel, where Mr. Pickwick met the backney coachinan and became acquainted with Jingle, and a little fürther down is the house of Sannel Pepys, the author of the Diary. Garrick lived in this vicinity, and some of the most important events in the life of Lady Jane took place 3 ight here.

The average English waiter and porter of a hotel are almost always feed. The waiters are as a rule solemn-fooking fellows, and they are always dressed in swallow-tail coats, low cut vests and white ties. They are very polite, especially when you are about to depart, and at that time all present themselves. The best of them ito not ask for fees outright, but you can see they expect it all the same. If you do not for them a look of meffable scorn comes on their taces, and you have fallen like lend in their estimation.

Last night at the Covent Garden theatre restaurant a party of Americans, of which I was a member, drank a bottle of wine together. We sat at a little table just off of the promenade of the grand theatre and were waited upon by one of these walking elethes frames in full dress. The bill was asked for and a noted literary man of America handed the walter the exact change. He started away with a thank you and then came back as ho looked at the change, and said with an air which was half demand: "Gentlemen, there is no fee here for the waiter!"

The American replied: "No, and you will get none! I am usually very liberal with your class, but I will never give fees when I am asked for them."

The waiter looked mad, spluttered a little, and went off. As he did so the American remarked to me: "This is the first time I have ever been directly asked for a fee." This man goes to Europe nearly every year and is a constant fee giver. Many Americans feel the same as he does. They don't object to giving a sixpence or a shilling when in the mood and when they feel they have been well served. They - object to giving in response to un-

DOWING FOR A FEE.

There are about 13,000 cabmen in London and about 1,000 bus drivers. The cabmen have fixed rates for passengers, but t ey expecta penny or two additional with every fare. The bansom cab is the great vehicle here, and its rates are for two persons about a shilling or twenty-five cents for a two-mile trip. It is a two-wheeled one-horse affair. open at the front, and the driver sits behind and drives with his lines over the top of the cab. They do not obstruct the view and they make excellent time. These cabs are owned largely by capitalists, who let them out to the drivers at so much per day, and their pay is in what they can earn over this. The hansom was for years peculiarly a London institution, but it has been lately taken up in the United States, and Washington. Philadelphia and New York are adopting it.

Speaking of restaurants and eating, it is wonderful how much meat these English people cat, and what good meats they have, The English grill room has an international reputation for its chops and steaks, and all over England you will see the sign "Grill Room" tacked to the walls of many restaurants. The grill room is a part of the restaurant where the meat is broiled in the same room it is enten, and where one can pick out his own steak or chop and have it cooked for him. It differs from other restaurant rooms chiefly in the grilling part, which consists of a wide fireplace at the end of the room, built into the chinney, about as high from the floor as that upon which the blacksmith's fire burns. Upon this fireplace are masses of red coals, and over them grates of iron and spits, on which, with an appetizing odor, are broiling meats of various kinds. A cook in white cap, white waistcoat and apren presides over the grill, and at his side are big counters, upon which are laid out all kinds of raw chops, steaks and birds. You can pick out your own piece of meat, and see it put on the coals. In ten minutes, or less, it will be brought, smoking hor, to you, and you will find it delicious. If you are an Englishman you will order a mug of beer with it, and about a quart of heavy beer will be handed c travelers. They have acquired an you in a big silver mug. You also have around reputation as such. They pay potatoes or other vegetables if you pay for r loss and get less for their money than them, and you close your repast with a bit of other class of travelers. I beard a rich old Stilton or Gorgonzola cheese, which looks Melnotte's ideal palace, on the Lake of Como. Are riam at Edinburgh, say that it cost him as old as a cathedral ruin, and as moldy as a damp, mused cellar.

There are numerous old and noted restanrants in London. I came across one the other day called the Palstaff restaurant in the vicinity of Mark lane, and on Fleet street there is one at which Nell Gwynne used to the presentation temployes about the public dine which dates back into the Seventeenth but as have their hands always open, century and has the sign "Nell Gwynne Tavern, founded A. D. 1666," upon it.

The Cock tavern near by has been noted among lawyers for years, and it is a little sixvants expect the same fee whether attendance | teen-feet wide building of many stories, sandwiched in between more modern structures. It has a golden rooster for a sign, and it looks very old. It is the restaurant that Tennyson speaks of in the beginning of one of his

I dropped into the Cock yesterday. The grill eating was going on in stalls, while a very pretty maiden presided over the bar. I took a glass of port for the name of the thing and found it very good indeed, but whether was of the Lusitanian kind or that for chance comers I know not.

Among the noted London restaurateurs of the present, Spiers & Pond stand very high, They have restaurants with silver gridirons and lots of colored glass all over London, and you find their establishments connected with the principal theatres and the railway stations. They are Australians, who have introduced French cookery into England, and many of their restaurants furnish meals on the Daval plan. Duval was a French butcher, who has founded restaurants all over Paris, at which everything is sold at the lowest remanerative rates, and everything is charged for even to the napkins. A bill of fare is given you with the prices attached to each dish, and you pay for just what you want and no more, except a fee, perhaps, to the waiters. These restaurants of Spiers & Pond are higher in price than the Duval establishments of Paris, but their service is excellent.

There is a big one in Fleet street, near the new law courts and in the locality of the large newspaper offices of London. It was in Fleet street that Dr. Samuel Johnson lived, and this restaurant is not far from where Isaac Walton's house used to stand. I have dined in it many times, and am always ablo to get a good dinner for about fifty cents. Everything you have here costs something, The use of the washroom to clean your hands and face costs six cents, and for this you get a fresh towet, wrapped up in a scaled paper, to show that no one else has wiped upon it, a "hrush off" by a waiter, and as much hot and cold water and soap as you want. The dining rooms are above this and on a level with Fleet street. They are large, elegantly furnished and filled with a hundred or so of little tables, covered with the whitest of linea. You enter them through a wide hall, and as you pass the policeman at the door you are given a tiezet or bill, on which what you eat will be set down by your waiter. The boy who gives you this is in a sort of a pen in the middle of the doorway, and you cannot pass in without getting it. You select your table, and your waiter takes your order. All of the waiters are girls of from about 18 to 25 years on its domands. It is surprising of age, and a very pretty, lady-like and lool ing fellows some of these agreeable lot of girls they are. ing beside me I made a hasty sketch of her and her badge. She was very pretty, and though she appeared delicate she was strong enough to dislodge with her corkscrew a refraetory wine cork with a loud report. The corkscrew is a part of each of these girls' attire, and it is tied to their waists by a black string, and hangs half the way down the dress like a lady's fan at a party when not in use. Number 5 gave me a napkin, for which I paid two cents; a piece of brend, two cents; butter, two cents, and then my dinner as per order. Everything was nicely cooked and the service was of the best, though the prices were no less than those in the better class restaurants of New York, where cheapness is made an object. The prices of eating in London are about the same as in America, and when you figure up the total of your hotel bills you find that they amount to at least $3 or $4 per day at the better hotels, and more than that at the best. Their prices appear cheaper from the fact that everything is itemized. The total, however, is a continual astonishment. Take a fixed price per day per room, say $1, and this is about the lowest for which one can get a room at the better hotels in the West End, or fashionable Loudon, and you find at the close an additional charge of one shilling and a half for service and one shifting for lights. The price of your room is now $1.62, and the waiters and boots will expect something when you leave. A room on any except the top floor will be higher, and the total daily rates will count up about as follows: $3 a day for the fourth floor, $5 for the third, $8 for the second, and about $40 for a room, including board, on the first floor. In all European hotels the ground floor does not count, and in most of them the floor above this is called the "entresol." The first floor is what would be the third floor in ican hotels which charge as much as the above rates. Of late years a number of penny coffee houses have a rung up all over England, and you find them in every part of London, These coffee rooms give a fair cup of coffee or chocolate for a penny, or two cents, a pat of butter for two cents and a piece of bread or roll for the same. Cold meats, pies and cake are also sold. There are no waiters at most of them, except those behind the cash counter. You go to the counter, ask for what you want, and carry it to one of the marble tables in the room, and, taking a seat, eat your lunch at your leisure. I have patronized these coffee houses several times when I wanted only a "snack" and have found them good. I understand that they are very paying institutions and that they do a great deal in the way of temperance reform, as no liquors are sold at them.

One of the finest restaurants of London is the Holborn, which from its table d'hôte dinners, accompanied by music, has acquired an international reputation. Here the furnishings are more gorgeous than those of Claude

bles, beautiful tiles, rich furniture, cut glass and silver plate. Flowers and plants there are in profusion, and every surrounding is that of luxury and wealth. The dining room is a great court, roofed with paneied carvings of gold and white, and with tiers of wide galleries looking out upon it and rising one above another. It is as large as a good sized theatre and in decoration does not look unlike one of the best of theatres. The band is in one of the galleries. It is an excellent one and it renders the finest music during the dinner hours, which last from 5:30 p, m, to 8:30 p, m. The dinner is a table d'hôte and it takes about one hour to go through its various courses. Between 500 and 1,000 people, I judge, were dining in it when I took my last dinner there, and the crowd was a well dressed and fashionable one. Each party had a table to itself, and many ladies were among the number. This dinner costs three shillings and six pence and three pence for the waiter, which is included in the bill. This makes a total charge of eightyseven cents for a fine concert and an excellent dimier, which you will agree is not dear. This does not, however, include wine, and as every one drinks here, the dinner amounts to as much more as the drinking tastes of the diner demands.

The dinner from the joint is a favorite meal with Londoners. It consists of soup and a cut of roast beef, tamb, or veal, with vegetables and cheese. The Albion, Simpson's, the Rainbow and others are among the oldfashioned English restaurants of this style. At Simpson's I have had many a good saddle of mutton, and I like the way it is brought to the table. A table on rollers with a fire burning upon it, and over this the great platter on which rests a big roast or fish, is rolled up to your table, and a cook dressed all in white cuts off the smoking slice before your eyes and lays it freshly cut upon your plate. A good dinner from the joint costs about seventy-five cents, and for this you get all the meat and vegetables you can eat. It is the dinner for a hungry man or a Dr. Canner. The quality is good and the quantity is unlimited, as you can repeat your order ad libitum without increase of price.

Actors, Minngers and Audiences Start Off Bravely This Season.

New York, Oct. 4 .- To judge from the full audiences this will be a most prosperous theatrical season. It ought to be. The average actor has been in rather hard luck for several years. Let us hope he and she will make enough dur-ing the coming months to make the past losses up to them. Furthermore, when theatres pay it is a sign the country is prospering.

How completely the star system has superseded the old stock company plan may be judged from the fact that there are at present only four theatres in the United States maintaining stock companies. These are the Madison Square, Wallack's and Daly's in New York, and the Boston Museum theatre. Even Philadelphia, with its 900,000 and more inhabitants, supports no permanent theatre.

The champion of the legitimate drama in the United States is A. M. Palmer, of the Madison Square theatre. Of the four stock companies named, his is the largest. Through thick and thin, through good and ill, he has stood up for the legitimate drama, that which refines instead of demoralizes. Popular taste has run after spectacular pieces, kicking shows, skating rink drames, and heaven knows what, for many years. There are now symptoms of a return to a desire for

The Madison Square theatre may be credited with having brought out American plays especially, and with baving done more for American drama than any of the others. A genuine native Yankee play, and a good one, too, "Held By the Enemy," has been running there for nearly two months. running there for nearly two months.

A leading theatrical event, to which critics and others are looking forward, is the arrival of Mr. Wilson Barrett, the rising English actor. He will be welcomed with uncommon eclat: first, because he is English; second that he is also an accomplished actor will add to the warmth of his reception.

Mrs. Langtry, with a wardrobe which has not been excelled in gorgeousness since the 1,500 gowns of Queen Elizabeth, is down upon 1,500 gowns of Queen Enzageth, is contrapted us once more. Genevieve Ward, our gifted countrywoman, now at the summit of her bravely-won career, is also playing in New York for the first time in many years. It is said that after the present season Miss Ward will bid farewell to the stage.

Meantime it is a satisfaction to know that Admitting it is a satisfaction to know that some American actors can carry off knows in Europe. Dixey, in his funny "Adonis," and Daly with his fine troupe have shown the Old World people that the Yankees can do something in the way of acting as well as other regula. For my part I am free to conother people. For my part, I am free to confess it is my unalterable conviction that America will furnish not only the actors but the singers of the future.

SHALL THE CHILD BE WHIPPED Will Hubbard Kernan Says "No," and Tells Why He Says It.

ISpecial Correspondence.1 New York, Oct. 4.—Mankind isstill below the standard it will ultimately reach-I mean the rabblement of mankind. They still display the old, fierce, tiger-spirit of the past in many ways; still delight in the devilthing called war; still tingle with an infernal feeling of pleasure at witnessing a prize fight or other exhibition of evil prowess, and still treat their children as the slave driver treated his slave.

The greatest intellect of our country--the one who has gone furthest in freeing himself of precedent; the one whose sermons on the sweet humanities have done more for the betterment of the world than all the homilies ever preached from pulpit-says that the man who whips a little cowering atom of a child is the most contemptible coward in the universe. And he is,

Think of a great, brawny fellow gripping a poor, trembling child by the arm, and beating it with fist or lash till it eries out, and sinks to the floor in agony!

When ever I see a sight like that, my blood boils with a wrath unspeakable. The utter helplessness of the victim appeals instinct of justice in my brain, heart, soul.

Institct of pastice in my brain, neart, som.

I knew a lad once. He was only 10 years old. He was as beautiful as a dream of beauty. There was a grace in his attitudes—a plocy in his eyes—a something indefinable in his very presence—in the unconscious lisp, the turn of hand and neck, the peculiarity of thought and tone—that made him one of the most fovable beings I ever saw. His mother, a Spanish lady, died in giving him birth. His father was a coarse, cruel Englishman-one of those sordid clods that you can find by the multitude in the mines and mills of England; a creent here of west and in ils of England. land; a great bag of meat and bones, unfired by a solitary ray of the divine light that constitutes intellect.

To kicks and curses this lad was treated, unfil one day, in his tenth year, when—for some triffing thing—the father whipped him till the blood trickled to his heels.

"Never do that again!" cried the boy, a horrible light flashing in his big, beautiful eyes. "Never dare touch me with whip again!"

Maddened by these words, the furious father returned and struck the boy again.

But only once—only once!

Quicker than I can tell it the child pulled a revolver, shot his father dead, and then, turning the smoking barrel against his own breast, fired and fell back into the infinite mystery from whence he came. That father did not understand the being to whom he had given life—what parent does! Having been treated like a dog, mayhap, by his own progenitors, and having submitted like a dog, he thought his own son would suffer submissively as well.

I have often said, and I hold if to be a truism, that the spirit of brutakty still remaining in the heart of the race springs from the parental treatment meted children of the rougher classes, and as long as corpored punishment continues in the households of the world just that long will the masses of humanity fail to realize the ideal of its interpreters and prophets.

WILL HUBBARD KERNAN.

Shall We Travel Through the Air?

London, Sept. 13.—Like perpetual mction, the problem of air navigation is one that will not down. Come to think of it seriously, there is no reason to doubt that aerial navigation will be finally accomplished. More difficult knots than that have been untied by the ingenuity of man. There are those who say that whatever can be dreamed of as a possibility by the mind can be wrought out in matter as fact. If this be true we shall surely have air boats before many years. Cranks and scientists have been working at the thing for a long time.

Meanwhile a French aeronaut actually has steered a balloon from Cherbourg to London, and alighted a few miles from where he meant to stop. That fact adds to the prob- Fine Buggies and ability that the whole task of air sailing will be studied out. It is true the French neronaut was a good while going from Cherbourg to London, and the wind was not blowing much. If it had been, he would have been at its mercy and alighted where it pleased to set him down.

But this proves it can be done. If an air ship can be steered in a calm it can be in a wind, or man's brains have been given to him in vain.

The old spherical balloon pattern has been deported from in recent air ship building. The idea is now to make the general contour of bag and car conform to the general shape of the body of a bird. Then the problem shapes itself like this: Have a gas bag of sufficient business of the body cient buoyancy to bear the whole weight of the machine up in the air in all winds and weathers. Then inside the boat have a propelling engine and a steering apparatus to drive the balloon forward. When that is thought out, balloon steering will be accomplished. If stored electricity can be utilized as a motor, air ships can sail a round the JOHN TETSON.

"You dearest, sweetest little duck, so it was! Manny's pessus pet."

It sounded much like "manimy's pessus pet," but the voice was so young, so fresh, so cooing, that Joe Parker could not believe his

There was something "magnetic" about it, to use the slang of the day; at least it attracted Joe to the row of raspberries that flung their green arms all abroad on the old picket fenge between his garden and the next neighbor's and irresistibly bent his head to peep through those respectable palings and see what he could see.

And this is what he saw: Such a lovely girl! Her hair was red, to be sure, but it was that bronze red that looks brown in the depth of its ripples and gold on their crests. Just now, in the blazing sunshine, it was all a rich deep red, with gift threads among it, but then she had such eyes! large, clear, red hazel eyes, as beautiful as a robin's or a squirrel's, fringed with dark lashes and overbrowed with delicate dark arches, a little lifted with a look of surprise that was the result of shape and outline.

checks were slightly freckled, but in such a fresh red and white the smallest spot will show, and nobody is perfectly beautiful, not even Mary Ann May, commonly called "Manny May." For instance, her mouth was large; but then it was so full, so red, and parted over such firm white teeth, that it seemed just to match the saucy little nose above and the round dimpled chin below it. Her waist was large, too, just as large as the waist of any sculptured goddess wrought by Phidias or Praxiteles, for Manny had never been pinched in mind or body, or given over to that awful tyrant "They," who puts our girls to the torture of rack and boot from their infancy, that they may be and do as and its movements were all instinct with the untransceled grace of nature. As she stood in her mother's garden, with both hands clasping her pet to her bosom, a basket of dandelion greens and an old case knife at her feet, she was a perfect picture; but she had not an idea of it.

beauty as his mistress. His coat of deep bule-gray was striped and dashed with shining black; a ring of black encircled his massive neck; his tail was ringed also with sable, and five wide black stripes ran from between his cars down to the very tip of the tail, merging as they went into one broad band, then there was a snow-white spot upon his breast, and his powerful paws were black as long enough to make much acquaintance there, and was very hard at work the first few weeks of his stay, so that he always went to sleep in church on Sunday, and missed any sight thereby of the blooming damsels in the choir or in the pews; he was ashamed of it, to be sure, but there was the change of air from and low lying pastures about the river, and helping to place the new machinery, move the old, and settle his mother in this strange place, where he knew no one to whom he could apply for help or suggestion. It was not Sunday to-day when he peeped through the fence at Manny, and suddenly, as if by a stroke, lost his honest young heart-for, beloved reader, this is only a love story. Only a love story; only a record of the great world song, the event of so many lives, the finality of all, as the old poet sings. When I hear people say, "Only a love story," I think of that couplet of Termyson's:

This being successfully effected, he went daily for the milk before mill hours, and his pail was filled by Mary Ann, blooming with the sweet morning air, neat, trim and levely at 6 o'clock a. m. as a city girl at her late dinner. Joe grew worse and worse. He thought of Manny in mill and market; her face shone above the machinery, her laugh tinkled with the mill bell. He made friends with Peter also; for eats know lovers—when they are cut lovers-just as well as children know their friends. figer was still kept in the highfenced c .icken yard on the Parker premisesnow devoid of chickens-as a measure of precaution against his straying; he was too dear to his mistress to be ventured at large yet. It is not to be denied that Manny looked with favorable eyes upon Joe Parker; a personable young fellow with a good position does not fall at the feet of every farmer's daughter, even if she is a beauty. The "anxious and aimless" have in their ranks many a lovely face and capable character. Manny had been no further than the district school for her education, and her home training was too hard, practical, thorough work. She read no novels or "story papers;" The Weekly Courant and The Puritan Recorder helped her through Sundays, but on week days she had work to do, and at night was tired enough to go to bed early. So she was simple as well as sensible, in the best sense of simplicity, and

But, alas! there was trouble coming. Tige, the Parker cat, hurt himself seriously in an attempt to climb the palings of his jail yard, for they were old and rickety, and could not bear his weight. His mistress nursed him in the house for six weeks with great care, and when he was quite well again, and stronger than ever with much feeding, he was turned out of doors and allowed to roam and ravage as he would, and at once he lit upon Peter.

Peter preferred his knee to her lap, called him an "awful thing" if he caught her hand in his

with the milk pail handle, and was always meeting with him, so that his true love ran ominously smooth.

Dire was the conflict, but Mrs. Parker hastened to the rescue with a pail of water. and the astonished Peter, quite drenched to the skin, fled, while Mrs. Parker picked up Tiger and carried him into the kitchen, lamenting over him as if he were a hurt child, Now Mrs. Parker was a shy and silent woman, but very resolute; she at once made up her mind that the May's cat should not intrude on her premises to disturb Tiger. She had the garden fence re-enforced, and even a strip of wire netting added to its height on the Mays' side; but she could not cabin, crib or confine Tiger himself-a circumstance that vexed her much. And when Peter came home to Mary Ann, after that first duel, dripping like a drowned rat, she, too, was indignant; but what could she do! Battles set in, howls by night, skirmishes by day; a piece was soon bitten out of Peter's lovely waving tail, and Tiger lost half an ear. Manny made invidious remarks about Mrs. Parker's cat every day of her life, and Mrs. Parker made Joe's meals bitter to his soul with evil speaking of Peter and Peter's family-meaning the Mays. Yet they were friendly enough, except on the catquestion. Mrs. May taught Mrs. Parker how to knit new heels into Joe's yarn stockings, ard Mrs. Parker showed Manny's mother the last pattern of crochet edging; they exchanged samples of cake, talked skill ully of pickles and preserves; in fact, had a liking and respect for each other-all but the cats. Before the last pleasant autumn days were gone Joe had gathered courage to ask Mary Ann to marry him, and she had prettily consented; they were "keepin" company" now, and the old folks looked on well pleased to think that neither of their children would stray far from home, though Joe insisted on having a small home of his own, if only a tenement in the village, properly remarking: "We won't mix folks, Manny-it don't succeed; besides, I want you all to myself"-a peremptory sort of logic that pleased Miss Mary Ann and made her assent hearty and

They meant to be married in April; in no less time could the modest array of clothing and house linen be made ready, for chiefly it must be sewed by Manny's deft hands; and sewed it was, with no intervention of machinery, and almost ready, when-how shall I tell it!—one pleasant February day Peter trailed into the house with a bleeding ear, a blinking eye and one leg so hurt that he could not even limp on it. This was the climax. Manny had winked at Tige's enormities all that winter for Mrs. Parker's sake (meaning Joe's); she had only once hurled a basin of dishwater over him, three times chased him with a broom handle, and not thrown more than a dozen stones at him-which didn't count, for women never hit anything they throw at, or at least men say so.

But now Manny's patience gave a great gasp and died. She flew out of the door intent to maim or slay, but Tige's black tail just whisked out of the gate; she could not follow him, so she did the next thing, which was to wash Peter's wounds, put him to bed in the cellar, fetch bim dry catnip and warm milk, and leave him to that solitude that the wounded animal seeks and the wounded man

It was tea time then, and when Joe came in at his hour for visitation he found Manny no longer tender, arch or sentimental; the hazel eyes had a redder spark in them than he had ever seen, the cheeks flamed, and the red lips were puckered into a lovely severity instead of wreathed with smiles.

"Joe," she began, rushing at once into the fray, "you will have to kill Tiger. I can't stand it. He has chawed up Peter till he's 'most dead." "My dear girl," said Joe, in a dismayed tone, "mother sets by Tiger so." "I can't help it; he's a horrid, dreadful cat, and he'll murder Peter, and he's got to be killed." "But, Manny, think of mother; she's goin' to be alone and she thinks everything of Tiger. Why, she never would forgive me if I killed him."

"Well, if you like her better'n you do me, all right. I shall kill him, unless pa will:

Now Joe was not used to girls and their ways. He thought Mary Ann meant every word she said. He was really frightened. "But, Manny, just think. What will mother

"I don't care a cent what anybody says. I will not stand by and see my dear sweet old cat killed by a dreadful beast like that and not defend him. I'll pison it." "Oh, Mary Ann!" cried Joe.

"Then kill him yourself," she retorted.

"I cannot," said Joe, steadily.

Well he ! new how his silent mother loved Tiger; like many other women, she bestowed on her pet all the demonstrative affection she was too shy and too reserved to lavish on Joe. The cat slept on her bed, followed her about the house and garden, sprung up into her lap and purred there as she sat alone in the evenings, and however fierce a fighter of his kind, was devoted and loving to his mistress. More than ever did she cling to him now, in her wordless jealousy of Joo's new love; for well she know that

"My son's my son till he gets him a wife," and deeply she felt, as most mothers feel, that her rule and her joy were over.

Joe looked at Manny with his heart in his eyes, but that young person's willful soul bad got the better of her sense and her affection both; she had given Joe her final test; she would find out now whether he loved her or his mother best. Poor Joe1

"You won't!' she asked, setting her lips in a firm red line. "No," said Joe, with equal firmness.

The situation had come to a dead lock. Just then a wild scream was heard, and a scurrying of feet. Mrs. Parker, with a face of fright, drew herself up on the picket fence, and called for Joe. "Come quick!" she cried. "Tige has tum-bled into the cistern!" Joe ran as fast as he could. He knew the cistern was two-thirds full, and its sides slippery, but he had not an idea what to do; he lost his wits—and Mary Ann found them! She overtook him at the door of his mother's kitchen. "Here! here!" she said, breathlessly; "here's pa's scoop-net; it's real strong. You can't get him out any other way." And yet five minutes before she lad made in a vital cat. Girls are queer. So Tige, resisting to the last, was fished out of the water butt and handed over to his delighted mistress, who roned him in her apron and took him in for repairs, flinging over her shoulder to Manny a curt: "I don't Sentimental and Comic Songs. An interesting fact about successful songs may be noted, and that is, only sentimental songs make any money. Humorous songs become very popular. They are applauded in the theatre when a favorite singer sings them, and are laughed at unrestrainedly, but very few in the audience ever think of bnying copies of them. This is peculiarly true of that description of humorous ditty known as the topical song. It may be explained that this is a song in which the material of the different verses is arranged to give point to a significant phrase which invariably forms the last line of the verse. The performance practically amounts to piggling with language, the effect coming from the humorous and unexpected illustration which can be adduced of the idea embodied in the adopted phrase.

Given on the stage by an expert singer, who entorces the points of the verses by appropriate action and facial expression, these songs are very effective. Sung in the parlor by an ordinary vocalist and without the c. 'ect which comes from the assembly of a large number of people, these songs almost invariably fall flat. In consequence they are very seldom sung there, and the music publishers who give them to the world find the world ungrateful, much to the publisher's pecuniary grief. On the other hand, a sentimental song may be sung in the home circle by an inexperienced singer with very fair effect. Somehow or other the underlying sentiment survives the most outrageous treatment. It has better staying qualities than humor has. The melodies are simple, the thoughts expressed find a welcome among all classes of people, and the sheet music finds its way to thousands of piano racks throughout the land; and so the publisher becomes happy and affluent .-New York Mail and Express.

Hygela in the Dog Days. While runinating over a pipe on the evening of one of the dog days, the themometer being above eighty degrees in the shade, I have wondered what the goddess Hygeia would have done, and what she would have recommended under the circumstances, for purposes of health and comfort. She wouldn't have eaten roast duck I know; but how would she have combated the fierce heat, by way of keeping herself cool? Would she have swallowed haggis and cockleekie in north Britain, ham and beef in Yorkshire, and tripe and onions in London! Not a bit of it. Hygeia had too much respect for herself as a goddess to indulge in such plebeian and delusive dainties in hot weather. I can just see her in a scornful attitude, on the top of a marble column such as Alma Tadema loves to paintshe waves her hand over the smoking viands our good cooks are sending up for our delectation. She preaches abstention in a way that makes one feel creepy, as her words seem to come down from the cold marble. She is commanding her followers to keep cool with milk and water, and grapes and strawberries, and to leave all the alcohol and wine and beer for other occasions. I beg Hygeia's pardon, and shall renounce heat producers on hot days in future, although they are very good, and like everything else, unfortunately what dyspeptics like best.—Chambers' Journal.

The Despot of the White House.

Hector, Mrs. Cleveland's handsome poodle, holds supreme sway at the White House during the absence of his master and mistress, The dog is master of the situation and is a confirmed despot. One of the colored attaches of the executive mansion was assigned to the duty of waiting on the dog before the president left the city, and the curly-haired canine sees that his servant carries out the instractions given him. Hector is a very intelligent dog, and makes up for his mability to speak by expressive actions. He is very fond of a stroll around the grounds, and takes his body guard out for an airing two or three tinges a day. When he wishes to go out he piegs up his collar with a tag on it and starts on an exploring trip all over the house for his attendant. On finding him he places the collar in the man's hand and holds his neck ready for the pleasant yoke. As soon as the collar is placed over his head the poodle knows that his command is to be obeyed, and his joy knows no bounds. The same attendant feeds the executive dog and findshim a hard master to please. Bread and butter and the choicest meats, with small cakes for dessert, are always demanded, and, as his high connections insure compliance with his demands, he lives like air epicure.-Cor. Baltimore Sun.

How to Help the Poor. It is sad to have to acknowledge that the majority of the schemes for bettering the condition of the working millions are worse than useless. They sometimes do actual harm. There is a way, however, that money can be spent advantageously for the benefit of the toilers. Cornelius Vanderbilt has appropriated a large sum of money to build a club house for the employes of the New York Central Railway company who work around New York. In this club the men are furnished refreshments and opportunities for innocent recreation at a trifling expense. The aim is to give the employes, off duty, a good time in a club of their own, in which there shall be no temptations to dissipation. The Prince of Wales recently laid the foundation of a people's palace in East London. When completed, it will provide a means of recreation for hundreds of thou-sands of workmen, and also a technical and trade school for the education of boys. It will contain a summer and winter garden, concert halls, swimming baths, gynnasium, reading rooms and a library.—Demorest's Monthly.

MY BIRTHDAY.

We-Mother Raynor, Jack, and Iwere sitting in our little sitting-room, our best room, but not parlor, for mother would never call the little box of a room by so dignified a title, and for the hundredth time they were telling me what they knew of my life.

"You see, Birdie," said mother, as 1 had always called her, bit was stormy and Jack had been detained at the store -he was cash-boy at Cotton & Co.'s, then-but just as he was running up the steps about 7 o'clock he met a woman hurrying down them. She brushed by without speaking and he, when he reached the door, almost stumbled over a basket where you lay all snuggled up in warm flannels. Ah, but you were a very nice baby my dear. "Pity my mother hadn't thought so!"

I sarcastically observed. Then I saw Jack looking tenderly at me and I remembered that I had a secret to tell Mother Raynor. Larose and went to

"It was seventeen years ago tomorrow that you found me," I said, "and so that is the only birthday I have. I have accepted Jack as a birthday gift."

A radiant look of surprised joy fairly illumed her dear old face as she comprehended the meaning of my remark. "It has been the wish of my life," she whispered, kissing me softly. The next morning several little birthday tokens were on my breakfast-plate. Jack had gratified an off-expressed wish of mine by having a little cameo earring, found in the basket in which they first found me, set in a ring for me for one of my birthday presents. So the day began happily. During the afternoon, however, I chanced to go on the street to pay a visit to a girlfriend. At one place some workmen obstructed the sidewalk and I was obliged to cross the street. I remember stepping down and advancing a few steps, of hearing hoarse shouts of warning, feeling a sudden shock, and then all was blank.

When I returned to consciousness I was in a strange room; everything was strange to me. "Where am 1?" I asked, although I could see no one. "What has happen-"You are with friends," said a low, soft voice near me.

Turning my eyes, they fell on a sweetfaced lady, not yet old, although her hair was nearly white, sitting near me. "How came I here?" I demanded, in a weak, startled voice.

After a brief consultation with a woman, evidently the nurse, the lady decided to explain the situation.

"You are weak, but I trust to your good sense to remain calm while 🕴 tell you why you are here. About a month ago you were crossing the street and my husband and I accidentally ran against and severely injured you. There was nothing about you to identify you, so we brought you home."

"And this was a month ago. Has no one been here? Did you advertise?"

"No," replied the lady. "It was reported in the police news, I believe, as my husband had to pay a large fine for his carelessness, but I never thought of advertising for your friends. I suppose they would go to the station, and then be directed here, if you had any in the

A whole month I had lain there and no one had called. And my pule, thin hands showed how near to death's door As I lay looking at my wasted fingers

I noticed that my ring was gone. Hastily I inquired where it was. My new-found acquaintance blushed, and then said: "Will you allow my husband to talk with your a few moments? He has your

"Years ago," he began, after apologizing for being the cause of my illness and congratulating me on my recovery, "I had a pair of cameos carved in this city. They were unlike anything ever seen here. "Was it seventeen years ago that your child was stolen?" I asked, cagerly. "Yes. What do you know of it?" he questioned, hoarsely. "I know that I am your child, then."

After I had told the story so often repeated to me by my mother Raynor they were perfectly satisfied that I belonged to them.

Their story was that my father had given his wife a necklace of diamonds, and, seeing how pleased her baby was with it, she had shaken the stones before its eyes, and at last, in a spirit of fun, clasped it about the child's neck. But she did not understand the fastening, and as her husband was away from home and she could not get the short chain over the child's head, she was obliged to let the nurse put the infant to sleep with the glittering ornament about its neck. But the temptation proved too great for the nurse, so unfastened. The theory we, my new-found parents and I, formed was, that becoming frightened at her own exploit and not daring to try to replace the baby-I never can realize that that baby was myself-lest she be discovered she con-in pity for him.

We'conversed long and lovingly. "To-day is your birthday, my dear," interrupted my new mother, brightly, entering the room with mother Raynor, "and if the other was spoiled ask what you will and you may have it." "Fil take Jack, 'Tsaid gayly.

A Bell that Belonged to Columbus.

The trustees of the New African Methodist Episcopal church at Haleyville, in Cumberland county, N. J., have received as a gift a small bell for the tower of their little church, which is said to be a most remarkable and valuable relie. It was brought from the island of San Andreas by Capt. Elias A. Newall of the bark Eva A. Fisk, and its romantic history was related to the captain by the islanders. In the year 1492, when the war between the followers of the crescent and the cross culminated in the capture of Grenada from the intidels by Ferdmand, and Isabella transformed the famous Alhambra into a Caristian temple, several beds were east to hang in the lofty towers to ring out the time for matins and vespers, and among them was the bell which is now to call the dusky members of the Haleyvine church to prayer-meeting and Sunday services. On the departure of Columbus on his fourth and last voyage to America it was presented to the discoverer by Queen Isabella. Coaimbus gave it to the chapel at Carthaena, on the Spanish Main, where it gain performed its holy mission until ne city was hesieged and looted by the onecancers in 1697. In dividing the sports the bell fell to the share of the French ship La Rochelle, and was used on the vessel until, during a furious hurreams, she was wrecked on the island if San Andreas. A few of the erew vere saved, and the bell was taken rom the wreek to the island, where it marned until it was obtained by Capt. and improve a contact Jersey consta

Peter knew his power and his position. Petted from his carly kittenhood, he soon learned, like the young of the human species, that he could tyrannize over his petters, and then the warmest, softest seat was given up to him, the door opened at his first appeal, the giblets of the rarely used fowls were saved for him, his tastes gratified and his no-

He came from Hanover to Meriden by rail, nailed up in a strawberry crate, hissing, spitting, yowling and sharpening his claws on his frail prison all the way, to the terror of every passenger in the car. Indeed, Joe was forced to carry crate and all into a baggage car at the third station, and ride with it the rest of the way, for the brakemen refused to look after it, so daunted were they with the wild animal

A Baking Powder Trick.

The Chicago firm, under whose directions the band of women are "testing" our baking powders has hit upon a very cunning trick. The "test," as performed by these ladies, is to mix the baking powder they peddle and that found in the kitchen with water, separately, and call attention to the difference of action. That found in the kitchen, if pure, will foam up quickly, like champagne. The baking powder they wish to prove superior will rise slowly, foaming like new yeast, over the top of the glass. This slower action results from the presence of flour, albumen, or a gum in their baking powder, and is evidence of adulteration. To prove this, fill a glass half full of water, mix together equal parts of flour and some pure baking powder, pour into the water and stir quickly. There will be produced precisely the same effect -the slow foaming action-produced by the tests with the adulterated baking powder as made by our lady mis sionaries from Chicago. The effect will be even heightened by adding a little lime, such as the baking powder carried by the ladies and the other low grade adulterated powders contain. Of course, any statements made in reference to baking powders, by parties caught in practicing such tricks as these for the purpose of deceiving the public, will be entitled to no credit

Massillon Amusements.

Eloquent speakers and plenty of music can be heard at the A. O. U. W. free entertainment in the Opera House Friday

The Four Emeralds variety show played to moderate business three nights this week. In its way the show was good, but the way was very poor.

Charles Gardner drew his usual large and enthusiastic audience last Thursday night. Prof. Baer's new orchestra made its how to the public, and was given hearty applauses after each number.

The advertising columns of this paper promised Pulman's circus in this city on Friday, but as they have not billed at the mines continues good. The the town or made any contracts, it is Blaine mine has slacked up a little, probable that they have closed their

Prof. Crocker's troupe of educated faster than they can be filled. This horses will be here October 25, 26 and 27. Their performances are said to be superier to anything of the kind, and have taken the position vacated when Bartholomew retired.

> M. B. Curtis, the famous "Samuel of Posen," has applied for the Opera House for October 20, but that being Alvin Joslin's date, he had to be refused. The manager hopes to arrange for his appearance at some other time.

Harold Forsberg's manager telegraphed that his season had closed, and that he therefore could not play here Saturday. It means that the company has gone to pieces. It was an excellent combination, and its misfortune is unde-

A large and appreciative audience greeted the appearance of Tony Denier's Pantomime Troupe last evening in the dd-time yet ever new Humpty Dumpty. Many new and pleasing tricks were introduced in the pantomime, and there was an entire absence of the drawbacks of a first night's performance. The performance is one that will please young people.—Boston Daily Traveller,

It is a very talented company that Manager Benton has brought to present Wheeling's favorite comedy, "Silver Spur," this season. It has filled the Grand opera house every night this week, and no wonder, for with its bright and catchy music, its pretty songs, its gracetwo months closed his summer term ful dances, and the ever-popular banio solos, forms one of the most enjoyable entertainments imaginable. To night Captain Pickles, the new com- and to-morrow closes the successful en-manding officer of the Salvation gagement.—Wheeling News Letter.

The possibilities of Humpty Dumpty will never be realized. Everybody of mature years knows what it was, and, having gone to see it each year since childhood, knows what it has been since. At the same time there is a probability that those who were not at the People's last night do not know what it is now. Tony Denier's name guarantees the excellence of the entertainment. With Ravel as Clown and the perennial Humpty introduced among Indian surroundings, there is a decidedly entertaining pantonime. The specialists as a whole are clever, and the ptay of child hood should have a prosperous run.-St. Louis Globe Democrat.

Speaking of Miss Bensberg who will soon appear in Massillon with the Max Strakosch eencert company, Mr. Strakosch has said to a reporter:

"In the first place site is natural. You know she is young yet-hardly more than twenty. She is an American born in the play at the Opera House in and bred, with a love of art for its own Massillon on last Thursday might, sake and with a capacity to lose herself "Karl the Peddler" is immense, (your in her impersonations. Throughout her appearance on the stage her first thought seems to be of the character-not her own ambition. This is what makes her Monday for Springfield, O., to make such a cord with the public-there is so little that is stagy, or like striving after effect. She is the most thoroughly natural operatic singer I have ever seen."

THE LECTURE COURSE.

Though promised this week, it has been found impossible to announce the dates for the lecture course positively. Approximate dates have been made, and the definite time will be set probably next week. At present it is expected to commence the course with the Hon. Geo. R. Wendling, on November 5, who, everybody says, will give the enterprise a magnificent send-off, Mr. Burbank will come December 6. Prof. Swing and General Wallace, January, Kate Field, February 15, and Joseph Cook the latter part of March. There are plenty of season tickets still for sale. Should the encouragement given present proposition be greater than anticipated, a supplementary course can be arranged, and another winter, perhaps, twice as many entertainments can be given for the same money that people pay this year. The matter rests entirely with the people.

Chewing Gum by the Ton.

A day or two ago my wayward feet carried my boly into the suburbs and to a chewing gum factory. There I got some idea of an industry that thrives on penny sales and the remorseless energy of American jaws. In the place I saw half a dozen blocks of marble gum, or petroleum wax. Each weighed about 100 pounds and was almost like pure pentelican stone, dear to the old sculptor's heart and hand, And it was absolutely clean and odorless A few weeks ago the stuff lay in one of the huge tanks near the oil wells of Pennsylvania, a dirty, greenish-brown fluid, with the consistency of a bad mud and the bad smell of a glue factory. Then it was crude oil, but since then it had been in a turmoil, and through "stirring times" and chemical processes.

From it had been extracted a lot of kerosene, almost as much naphtha, not a little benzine, plenty of tar, and a lot of valuable but technically named affairs that are out of reach. Anyway, the gum wax was left, and it was in that I saw, clean as an ideal farmer's bed chamber. Before it became the chewing gum of our friends it had to be melted, flavored, sweetened, and "put up" in fanciful array. Then the 100 pound block would appear in 5,000 penny cakes, and I am told that about 500 of these 100-pound blocks are used in each week of the history of Co-Hood's Sarsaparilla and it is an unanswera- lumbia, "the gum of the ocean," etc.-

THE BUIGARIAN PICKLE. Before his departure from Sofia Gen. Kaulbars presented to the Bulgarian government a note to the following effect: The imperial government desires to release all persons arrested in connection with the deposition of Prince Alexander. It also desires that the elections be postponed until November. The consequences of a refusal to comply with Russia's wishes will fall upon those actually governing Bul-tall upon those actually governing Bulgaria.

The Bulgarian government decided not to answer the note, but warned Kaulbars not to lecture, as it had information of a scheme to maltreat him. Gov. Kaulbars was met on his arrival at Orcharie by a deputation of citizens who expressed approval with the attitude of the government, and he immediately resumed his journey toward Plevna. He has telegraphed the military commandant at Rustchuk to liberate all political prisoners, otherwise he will be held responsible.

Eighty Russim officers who formerly served in the Bulgarian army have been ordered to hold themselves in readmess to return to Bulgaria at a moment's notice.

The Vienna Fremdenblatt says: "Gen. Kaulbar's conduct at the meeting in Sofia

The Vienna Fremdenblatt says: "Gen. Kaulbar's conduct at the meeting in Sofia and his projected journey through Bulgaria and Roumelia are not catemated to promote concitation. Diplomatic representatives are always accredited to the governments and not to the masses. Every government must regard open dealings of foreign envoys with a mob as violations of its authority. Regret will be felt at St. Petersburg, as elsewhere, at a course of conduct which must weaken Russia's just and moral influence in Bulgaria. If Russia desires to su ceed, her agents must become desires to su ceed, her agents must become better acquainted with the Bernin treaty. Gen. Kunloars appears to care little for the fundamental principles underlying the treaty."

CIVIL SERVICE.

The Civil-Service Commission has been The Civil-Service Commission has been busicy engaged for some time past in a revision of the rules and regulations relating to the civil service, and within a short time it is probable that a number of important modifications of the existing rules will be submitted to the President for his formal approval. The commission has changed the construction heretofore placed on the the construction heretofore placed on the law and rules relating to the appointment of soldiers to the classified service by the issue of the following order:

MILES AND THE APACHES. The annual report of Gen. Miles is still m the hands of the president, and has been the subject of a brid conference between himself and Seretary Endicatt, but it is understood that no line of action has been decided upon in regard to that portion relating to the surrender of Geronimo. While the text of the report is not yet accessible for publication, it is known that in respect to that maker Gen. Males does not explain himself to the satisfaction of the authorithat his grantic which are now understood to be even more liberal than has hereforore been supposed, is a subject of emburassment and perplexity. Without saying so in emphatic terms, it is gathered from Gen. Miles' superiors about expressions on the subject, that the agreement was made that the lives of the prisoners should be spared, and that they should be removed at once from Arizona. In this respect Gen. Miles has, it is said, gone contrary to the well-understood wishes of his superiors, which action amounts practically to disobedience of orders. The only reason suggested for this course—in the absence of any satisfactory statement on the point from Gen. Miles—is the fear that if he did not secure the prisoners in this way they would make terms with and surrender themselves to the Mexicans. This would have rendered the termination of the campaign apparently less creditable to the Americans, and in this state of affairs there seems to be nothing which the authorities can do for the punishment of the prisoners except to keep them permanently as prison rs of war. Even should the civil authornies of Arizona demand them for trial with the most positive proof of murder ready for presentation the hands of the administration would be

Lieut. Albe, of Winchester armory, who served many years in the southwestern campaign, has received a telegram from Cap. Lawton. Albuquerque, New Mexico, in which Capt. Lawton denies that Geronimo's surrender was coupled with any conditions. This dispatch is intended to con tradict the official report of Gen. Miles to the war department, which stated that Geronmo surrendered conditionally.
